FROM THE
PREFACE TO THE FIRST EDITION
(1946)

FOR many years past a need has existed for a work which would enable conventual and other choirs to sing the Psalmody of the Eucharist in the English tongue with the traditional Chant still current in Western Christendom. Hitherto only the Introits and a few of the Graduals, Alleluyas and Tracts have been available in such a form. The present volume is intended to cover the rest of the field, so that every Sunday and Holy Day may have its proper Introit, Gradual, Alleluia (or Tract), Offertory and Communion without any omission or need for substitution.

It is assumed that those who use the Plainchant Gradual will already possess the late Dr. Palmer's Offices or Introits and his Selection of Grails, Alleluyas and Tracts in the revised editions published at the S. Mary's Press, Wantage. The adaptations contained in these two collections combine so much profound scholarship with so remarkable a degree of musical sensitivity that it is fitting for them to stand alone, just as they were left by the hand of the master at the time of his death nearly thirty years ago. The present volume gives all the necessary references to them demanded by the requirements of the Liturgy, but Dr. Palmer's collections themselves remain intact, unsullied by the additions of any later or lesser hand.

The late Dr. Frere, in his descriptive chapter on Gregorian Plain-song in the 1929 edition of the Oxford History of Music, bids his readers 'take up a copy of the Graduale, or the Antiphonale, or the very convenient Liber Usualis . . . and know a little what to expect'. Such advice, so sound and so practical, may well be addressed to those who wish to study that great corpus of one-dimensional music upon a portion of which the present work is based. No performing edition of the music of the Eucharistic Psalmody can afford to ignore the evidence of the current official edition of the Latin Graduale, which is no mere reproduction of a local or partial tradition, but a cento resulting from an extended study and comparison of a host of manuscripts gathered from many places. Thus the musical text of the Graduale possesses a measure of authority which cannot lightly be disregarded.

Yet a note of warning needs to be sounded. However grateful we may be for the typical edition of the Chant of the Latin rite, we must avoid the short cut to certainty so alluringly held out by the fundamentalist approach to a document. For it must be admitted that the official Latin Graduale sometimes adopts a reading which can hardly be reconciled with the weight of evidence. Even an established principle appears occasionally to be disregarded. It cannot be doubted, for instance, that the concluding jubilus of an Alleluya-verse is, designedly, a replica of the concluding jubilus of the Alleluya melody itself. Yet the Graduale does not lack instances of Alleluya-verses which have suffered at the hands of an 'improver'. So while the Plainchant Gradual can make no claim to have carried the search for a true text any appreciable distance, it certainly has attempted to avoid some of the ambiguities which persist in the Latin Graduale. In this the Editor has been greatly assisted by Mr. E.G.P. Wyatt, whose wide knowledge and long experience have been generously given to this part of the work. Meanwhile the task of producing an unimpeachable critical text of the Plainsong melodies, with some inevitable marginal variants, remains for a future generation to accomplish.

The imposition of an uniform liturgical text and chant upon the greater part of Western Christendom belongs not so much to the age of Gregory the Great as to the period, some two hundred years later, when Charlemagne wielded power and Alcuin was his adviser. This Carolingian uniformity was achieved at the price of admitting to canonicity importations of non-Gregorian origin. Thus the Gallican Popule meus (Good Friday) is to be found in this volume, while the melodies of Hosanna filio David (Palm Sunday) and of Crucem tuam (Good Friday) are thought to be of Greek origin. Among the pre-Gregorian music which has survived are two ancient Agape chants, Maneant in vobis and Ubi caritas (Maundy Thursday). Such Old Roman remains as these latter may well owe their preservation, however, to S. Gregory himself.

In order that the texts of the English Hymnal may be provided for, the texts of the mediaeval Salisbury use are included, as well as those of the existing Roman use as reformed in 1570. The Salisbury Sequences contained in the Appendix to the complete edition of the Plainchant Gradual are due, in their present dress, to the skill of an experienced liturgical musician who desires to remain anonymous.¹

PREFACE TO THE SECOND EDITION

As the copyright of Dr. Palmer's work now belongs to S. Mary's Press, the contents of A Book of Introits and of A Selection of Grails, Alleluyas and Tracts are included in this new edition and the work of Francis Burgess has been revised.

It has been decided to include only the Roman use as given in the 1956 edition of the Liber Usualis or in any revisions of a later date.

A very limited use has been made of the rhythmic signs by the kind permission of the monks of the Abbaye Saint-Pierre, Solesmes, and of La Maison Desclée. A dot has been used to indicate a doubled note whenever this is not obvious to the singers, as it is before a half, whole or double bar; but when two notes are doubled before a bar, these have been dotted.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The first four verses of the Pange lingua, as given in this book, are the translation of the late Dr. Dearmer and are the copyright of the English Hymnal Committee. We are very grateful to the members of that Committee for graciously permitting us to use this translation.

FROM DR. PALMER'S DIRECTIONS
CONCERNING GRAILS, ALLELUYAS & TRACTS

THE GRAIL is intoned . . . by two boys from a lectern, the Quire . . . continuing as far as the Ψ . The boys chant the Ψ ., after which the Quire repeat the first part. But if it is thought desirable, this repetition may be dispensed with, in which case the Quire will join in the last few words of the Ψ ., as indicated by the asterisk.

The ALLELUYA is intoned by two Clerks from the same lectern as that used for the Grail. The Quire repeat Alleluya, and continue with the neuma. The Clerks chant the Ψ ., the Quire joining in the final words, as shown by the asterisk. The Alleluya is once more intoned by the Clerks, the Quire continuing with the neuma only.¹

From Low Sunday to the Feast of Pentecost inclusive the Grail is discontinued, and two Alleluyas with their $\Psi\Psi$. are sung. When this happens, the first Alleluya is not repeated after its Ψ ., but the Clerks proceed at once to the second Alleluya, the Quire continuing with the neuma only. After the second Ψ . the Alleluya is repeated as at other times. But when a Sequence follows, the final neuma is omitted.

The TRACT is normally sung by four Clerks, standing at the Quire-step, and intoning it all together. The latter part of the first verse, and all the succeeding $\Psi\Psi$. are sung alternately by two and two, all joining in the last few words of the last Ψ ., as shown by the asterisk. But on Ash Wednesday, Palm Sunday and Good Friday, it is sung by the whole Quire, verse by verse, from side to side.²

¹In some chapels the whole Quire joins in this intonation.

²In some chapels it is customary that the Tract should always be sung in this way, i.e. by the whole Quire, verse by verse, from side to side.

- 3 Thus the scheme of our salvation
Was of old in order laid;
That the manifold deceiver's
Art by art might be outweigh'd:
And the lure the foe put forward
Into means of healing made.
Ry. Faithful Cross, . . . peer may be.
- 4 Therefore when th' appointed fulness
Of the holy time was come,
He was sent who maketh all things
Forth from God's eternal home:
Thus he came to earth incarnate,
Offspring of a virgin's womb.
Ry. Sweetest wood . . . hung on thee.
- 5 Lo! he lies, an infant weeping,
Where the narrow manger stands;
While the Mother-maid his members
Wraps in mean and lowly bands:
And the swaddling clothes are winding
Round God's helpless feet & hands.
Ry. Faithful Cross, . . . peer may be.
- 6 Thirty years among us dwelling,
His appointed time fulfill'd,
Born for this, he meets his Passion,
For that this he freely will'd:
On the Cross the Lamb is lifted
Where his life-blood shall be spill'd.
Ry. Sweetest wood . . . hung on thee.
- 7 He endur'd the nails, the spitting,
Vinegar, and spear, and reed;
From that holy Body broken
Blood and water both proceed:
Earth, and stars, and sky, and ocean
By that flood from stain are freed.
Ry. Faithful Cross, . . . peer may be.
- 8 Bend thy boughs, O tree of glory!
Thy relaxing sinews bend;
For awhile the ancient rigour
That thy birth bestow'd, suspend:
And the King of heav'nly beauty
On thy bosom gently tend.
Ry. Sweetest wood . . . hung on thee.
- 9 Thou alone wast counted worthy
This world's ransom to uphold;
For a shipwreck'd race preparing
Harbour, like the ark of old:
With the sacred Blood anointed
From the smitten Lamb that roll'd.
Ry. Faithful Cross, . . . peer may be.
- 10 To the Trinity be glory
Everlasting, as is meet;
Equal to the Father, equal
To the Son and Paraclete:
Trinal Unity, whose praises
All created things repeat. Amen.
Ry. Sweetest wood . . . hung on thee.

- Haste thee, O God, to de-li-ver me: make haste to help me, O Lord.
- 2 Let them be ashamed that seek af-ter my soul : let them be turned backward and put to confusion that wish me e-vil.
 - 3 Let them for their reward be soon brought to shame : that cry over me, There, there.
 - 4 But let all those that seek thee be joy-ful and glad in thee : and let all such as delight in thy salvation say always, The Lord be prai-sed.
 - 5 As for me, I am poor and in misery : haste thee unto me, O God.
 - 6 Thou art my helper and my re-deemer : O Lord, make no long tar-ry-ing.

Glory be to the Father, and to the Son : and to the Ho-ly Ghost.
